4. The Tauntzien Kaserne was occupied to capacity. Gate guards wore black-bordered, red epaulets. No training activity was observed.

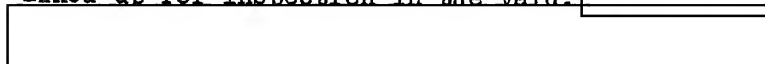

5. The Hindenburg Kaserne was still occupied by troops. Gate guards wore red-bordered, black epaulets. No drill was observed. About 100 troops were seen blasting a wire entanglement and charging through it. The exercises were witnessed by about fifty officers.

6. At the Albrecht der Baer Kaserne, a sentry with red-bordered, black epaulets and tank insignia was observed at one gate, and a sentry with artillery insignia at the other gate. A railroad employee said that twelve tanks, ten SP guns, and ten trucks from the Albrecht der Baer Kaserne had been entrained on 8 May and shipped toward Magdeburg.

*  Comment. The report indicates that most of the troops in Stendal namely the Hq LXXIX mtz Rifle Corps and units of the 207th mtz Rifle Div, were still at the post in early May 1950. The troops which left on 8 May 1950 were tank components of the 207th mtz Rifle Div which probably went to the Letzling Heath troops training grounds, where some motor vehicles of the divisions, possibly advance parties, were observed in April 1950.
